

Enjoy robot shtick or beer on a stick

By ERIN CRAWFORD
FOUND AT THE FAIR

August 18, 2006

If you've been lucky (and been out to the fair quite a bit), you may have seen all three of the street performers at the fair this year.

Stilt walker Carrie McQueen juggles -you guessed it - on stilts.

More impressive still is Rock-It Robot, a massive talking robot with lots of impressive moving parts, who has an almost vaudevillian shtick with the crowd, entreating people to take photos with him and bantering with the huge audience he tends to attract.

But the wildest thing out there was the Wacky Wheeler, a clown-like fellow with a massive wheel outfitted in horns. He clear a path, and then, with a cacophony of whistles and beeps, he's off, climbing his wheel, waving and doing tricks as he spins down the streets.